Une première impression

The wind that shaped the Cyclades gave this estate its name. What it offers in return is stillness.

Meltemi sits high above the bay of Ftelia, and from up here Mykonos feels like your own. Across a 20,000 m² estate, 640 m² of timeless Cycladic architecture steps down the hillside in three terraced levels. There are four independent guest houses with seven en-suite master bedrooms between them, and each one looks straight out to sea. Up to 16 guests can stay, and the estate is laid out so that everyone gets their own private world. Then they all meet again in the 85 m² living pavilion, where up to 20 people can gather around the semi-professional kitchen, eat beneath the pergola with the BBQ going, and stay out late in the sunset lounge around the central fire bowl.

Days here run at resort pace, but without any other guests. You can swim lengths in the sheltered 16-metre heated lap pool, soak in the panoramic outdoor Jacuzzi, or warm up in the sauna. There's a fully equipped 55 m² outdoor gym, and a private full-size tennis court with the Aegean as its backdrop. The children have their own playroom, and live-in staff quarters keep everything running smoothly. Three gated entrances and parking for eight cars mean you can come and go in complete privacy.

Ftelia lies on the quieter, wilder north coast of Mykonos. It's a broad, golden bay loved by windsurfers and by anyone looking for the island's more authentic side. The beach is just 1.5 km away, the traditional village of Ano Mera is close by, and the cosmopolitan buzz of Mykonos Town is a short drive away whenever you want it.
